

Abstract

An improved animal chew toy and process for forming such chew toy including the molding of the chew toy in the form of an identifiable food product with a realistic appearance that is suggested by an olfactory attractant, a flavorant, or a major ingredient 5 included in the chew toy. The chew toy is preferably made from ingredients that can be ingested by the animal.